SAM holds commerce day

The WSC chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management, the voice of B.A. students, will sponsor the second annual Commerce Day next Wednesday in the Smog and room 200. It will feature talent-hunting industries from firms throughout the country, according to S.A.M. spokesman Jim Cavanaugh, Winona.

The industries attending include such out-state firms as I.B.M., Trane Co., Minnesota Corrections, and others. Barry White, Levittown, Pa., and Tom Tweedy, Winona, are the industry contacts for SAM.

According to Tweedy, "The event should be the biggest opportunity for job hunters in recent WSC history."

The event will run from 9:30 to 3:00. The Winona Keys will serve as hostesses.

Dr. Joseph H. Foegen is club advisor.

"Men" raid dorm; dean holds probe

The "panty raid" at the women's dorms February 9 is still under investigation. A committee headed by Mr. M. R. Mariner, dean of men, met this past week.

An estimated 60-100 men entered Conway Hall 7:30 Wednesday evening, rushed up to the fourth floor, and quickly worked their way down through the first floor of the building. They entered rooms and took available items such as sweaters, pajamas, underwear and perfume. Many drawers were found strewn in the rooms.

The switchboard in Morey Hall was disabled to prevent anyone from calling a warning to another dormitory or from calling the authorities. When police arrived, all of the men had left. Witnesses in the dormitories said the raid was very well planned and an elaborate system of hand and whistle signals had been used.

After finishing in Conway and Shepard Halls, the men quickly went to Richards Hall where they ran through two floors, mostly scaring the girls. Since the men were in a hurry, much less was taken there than in the other dorms.

Witnesses also said that the men, dressed mainly in ski jackets, all had knit ski hoods over their faces, and gloves on their hands.

Apply to Norway

Applications for participation in the Norwegian exchange program should be made to: Miss Amanda Aarestad in G203; or Dr. Harry Jackson in W103 by Mar. 1.

There is no expense as far as tuition at Oslo Teachers' College is concerned. Your only major expense is transportation to and from Oslo from the U.S. The Oslo Teachers' College will find a home for the students selected. WSC, in turn, finds homes for the foreign visitor. (Harold Edstroms are providing a home for Miss Norstebo.)

Folk sing tonight

Tonight at 8:00 the Humanities Club of Winona State, in conjunction with the Winona Art Group, is presenting an evening of Folk Music.

Nancy and Marcy of St. Teresa's College, winners in the national folk singing contest, will begin the program, followed by Dave Duggan, Cheri Sincok and Lou Buggs of WSC.

Longer library hours?

Why can't we have longer hours at Maxwell Library? It's open only from 7:45 a.m. until 9:30 p.m. on weekdays and until 3 p.m. on Saturdays. It's not open on Sundays at all. It has come to our attention that many students feel that this is not enough and would like to have more time to study in the library.

A brief consideration of the facts will indicate that there is need for a change. The girls have no study halls in their dorms this year, and students in Wednesday night classes need a better opportunity to use the library. The library is part of this academic institution, and was intended to be used by the students.

A review of these facts will specify how a change can be made.

If the library could remain open for a while longer on weekdays, say, until 11 p.m., this would afford all students another hour and a half of study time in the library. A few extra hours on Saturday and on Sunday afternoon are also urged for this purpose.

Wednesday night classes pose another situation. Classes end at ten p.m., and commuters who come 30 or 40 miles may want to use the library after class. Although class time is often taken for these students to do library work, we must not overlook the fact that they have the same right as any student to use the library. Perhaps the commuters would find it more convenient to use the library after class than to come to Winona early the next week for this purpose.

We must remember that the library is meant to be used by students when they need it; how can a closed library do them any good?

The library cannot possibly be open every time somebody needs it, but it can at least be available more often by offering longer hours. This involves not only weeknights, but also remaining open until 5 p.m. on Saturdays and opening on Sunday afternoons for a few hours. It isn't necessary that all library facilities be made available to students; after 9:30 only the main reading room need be used, the students not going into the stacks or checking out materials. A graduate assistant could be hired to have charge of this, just as a graduate assistant was hired to take charge of co-rec activities.

Surely our Student Senate, at least, can get something done, for they worked long and hard to get Memorial Hall open on Saturday mornings. We now have this, and it is a fine accomplishment, but let's also remember that we are members of an academic institution. Isn't it also important that our students be provided with a good atmosphere for study and a good place to study?

The library is a good place for this, and it was meant to be used; let's get as much use out of it as we can!

One group: all power?

To the editor:

Did you know that one organization on Winona State's campus could become an all encompassing power?

Not only could one organization wish to control its own business, but it is very possible for one organization to control ALL student affairs. How? Well, that's simple! One fraternity could run at least one person for each office of the student senate. It was rumored that one frat, which is made up of a large number of Easterners, wished to control our Midwestern college. This one frat's members figured they were so valuable that Winona State couldn't function without them. Isn't that a joke???

First of all, there are many good organizations on campus. Each of the competing organizations would be under the control of the student senate; and the student senate could be stalemated or controlled if one frat's members controlled 50% or more of the student senate seats. The implications of this power is quite obvious. One frat could hold great power over all other organizations on campus.

And what of any new organizations that would desire to form? The possible new organizations would have to get permission to organize from the student senate. If one frat holds half or more of the student senate seats, it could block or destroy any efforts of a new group.

I'm sure an organization on campus will dispute my idea that one organization is too powerful at WSC. They may use such logic as "people who work hard deserve power." Most students know that many dishonest groups have power because they worked hard. Does anyone really believe that all groups that work hard really deserve power???

What I propose is simple. Let's form a simple amendment for the student senate now, before it is too late. Let's resolve that no one organization on campus may have more than two seats out of twelve in the student senate. In this way, all clubs and organizations will have a good chance to function with a fair and unbiased student senate.

Yours truly,
Jack Tibbetts

Rumors are kid stuff

To The Editor:

Rumors are kid stuff.

Nevertheless, they sometimes find their way into collegiate and adult ranks.

One rumor has it that a letter of piddly criticism has reached the hands of the WINONAN staff, just chock full of juicy tidbits of irresponsible remarks about 'a certain fraternity on campus.'

The rumor has been brought to my attention, and I am acting on it for it could deal with the welfare of an excellent body of college men.

A certain student (we'll personify him from here on in) supposedly dislikes the way in which this body of men zealously seeks to better the life of its members by encouraging said members to actively participate in campus social and political life.

Too bad, Mr. Certain Student,

I'm certain you're not alone.

But to police the other side of the issue — our side — let me say that, if the assumed rumor is true, the accusations that our intentions of "overpowering," being "dishonest," or trying to "control," any part of Winona State College social or political life are brazenly ridiculous, impetuous and untrue.

We encourage expansion and perfection of our Brothers' capabilities, Mr. Certain Student. We're sorry if we crunched your foot somewhere along the way.

As I say, this letter is merely to stamp out a rumor. It may have already been disposed of, but in case it hasn't, this is our side.

'Summer and Smoke' runs smoothly

by Mrs. Elizabeth Donath

Tennessee William's SUMMER AND SMOKE, the unhappy love story of an idealistic young woman and a realistic young doctor ruled by his fleshy desires, opened Sunday night for a four night run in Somsen Hall Arena Theater.

Working smoothly under student director Robert Bruce McLean, the 14-member cast from the Wenonah Players and Miss Dorothy Magnus' class in Advanced Directing 425G, gave the audience a performance which caught the symbolism, poetry, and earthiness so characteristic of Tennessee Williams' plays.

A poignant play of contrasts, the subtle and the obvious in human nature, the delicate and the coarse, the spiritual and the worldly, the balanced and the unbalanced, SUMMER AND SMOKE, through character, dialogue and setting lays bare the lives of a few people in a small town of a half-century ago. One New York critic wrote about Williams' play, "The twin themes of his tone poem are clearly stated: spirit and flesh, order and anarchy."

Sharing top billing were the two main characters of the play, Alma Winemiller and John Buchanan, Jr.

Alma, considered by many to be one of Tennessee William's most memorable heroines, was beautifully played by Jeanne Morrison who showed great understanding of the part. Her voice, cadence and movements convinced her audience of Alma's idealism, sincerity, gentleness, and hidden desire. She moved smoothly from scenes in which she was her outward lady-like self to scenes which betrayed the depth and intensity of her emotions.

John, a potentially brilliant young doctor but undisciplined in his desires, was played by Alfonso Pagliarello. His interpretation of a man who had compassion for his fellowman; a certain amount of idealism in as much as Miss Alma remained Miss Alma to him; self-disgust (said he, "Did anyone ever slide down hill so fast this summer as I did—like a greased pig."); and the ability to pull himself out of the depths of degradation showed insight. Mr. Pagliarello turned in a most realistic performance.

Alma's parents, the Reverend Winemiller and his childish wife were played by Michael Sheimo and Naomi Gilbertson. The latter took the part of the unbalanced yet sometimes very observant and malicious mother and carried her role well. Mr. Sheimo epitomized the typical small town minister of that era with a cross to bear and the burdens of the community on his shoulders.

A sultry dash of color, life, and threat was to be found in Rosa Gonzales, seductively played by Judy Fuglestad. Rosa, the summer sweetheart of John, daughter of a notorious casino owner on the edge of town, wanted to be more than a sweetheart and persuaded her father that she must have John, if at the point of a gun.

John's creditor for a few thousand dollars at the casino, Mr. Gonzales, played by Steve Andersen, swashbuckled his drunken self before his daughter and John, threatening the latter. Later, in defending himself against the unexpected attack of John's father, Gonzales shot the elder doctor.

The part of the senior Buchanan as well played by Mr. McLean who looked, bellowed and behaved like some men of senior years, outraged by his son's conduct and by the unwelcome presence of Gonzales in his house.

Following John's denouncement of Alma at the time of the shooting of his father and his father's consequent death, Alma went into a deep depressive state. Her speech to John when she eventually offered herself to him perhaps sums up as well as anything the idea of the play: "The tables have turned, yet the tables have turned with a vengeance. You've come around to my old way of thinking and I do yours, like two people exchanging a call on each other at the same time and each one finding the other one gone out, the door locked and no one to answer the bell! I came here to tell you that being a gentleman doesn't seem so important to me any more, but you're telling me I've got to remain a lady."

The play reaches a dramatic climax when Alma, rejected by John, gives herself to the first traveling salesman that she meets in the little park where she and John used to meet. Gary Mayer plays the salesman with aplomb and succeeds in brightening the very dark moment of the play as the audience realizes Alma no longer is going to hold to the courage of her convictions.

A critic of the playwright once wrote, "For the most part, Williams' plays are moving — they call us to weep at human frailty and laugh at human follies." And the New York Times said of Williams and this play in particular: "He looks into the dark corners of the human heart and what he sees is terrifying."

What comedy relief there was in the play was provided in part through the character of Roger Doremus, a suitor of Alma. Victor Boregeson as Roger delivered his lines with clarity and tongue-in-cheek understanding of the role. His scene with Alma at her home brought appreciative laughs from the audience.

Student reacts to sex

Dear Sirs:

The editorial "Sex Gets Attention" which appeared in the January 29th issue of the Winonan, is the subject of my letter.

Upon reading this article my reaction was twofold: (1) the author of this article is a confused person; 2) anyone who took the time to read this article also became confused on this matter.

The author falsely rationalizes that the article is necessary for two reasons: 1) That Time magazine, last spring, published a sensationalistic "expose" on the decay of college morals which must be true; 2) "legitimate conversations have been discussing pre-marital sex more freely." Therefore, the author concludes that the students' morals at Winona State have degenerated, beginning on the date that Time published their "expose." What timing!

The reputableness and accuracy of this Time article is questionable. Also, I express my deepest hope that the author was not mistakenly eavesdropping on a meeting of the Winona State Chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Free Love when she concluded that "legitimate conversations have been discussing pre-marital sex more freely."

I can see why the author quickly states that the whole matter boils down to a question of "right" or "wrong." The author feels that we are "unfortunate" because we cannot agree on "clear-cut" lines of right and wrong. This may partly be due to the fact that Winona State, being a public institution, has atheists and agnostics among its students. For this reason alone I can see why students differ in their definitions of "right" and "wrong."

Befuddled reasoning is the most significant quality in the article's next statement. "Narcotics may be 'right' when a doctor gives them to relieve pain, or 'wrong' when taken for kicks. The same is true for sex." According to this reasoning, then, I can conclude that sex is bad unless prescribed by a doctor.

In the next paragraph the author makes the same error that is visible throughout the last five paragraphs. She equates the prohibitions of society with God's prohibitions, which are not the same: society's standards are subject to change, while God's laws are not.

To illustrate the point let us use the example of the man stranded for ten years in Anarctica with a sweet little Eskimo chick whom he loves. According to the author's reasoning, they may not perform the marriage act because of God's strict laws. However, this is a situation in which social environment has cast another light on God's law. Must this man and woman wait ten years for a chaplain so they can formally be married and then legally perform the marriage act?

I agree with the author's stand on adultery and I believe that every married student should abide by it: this commandment is for married people. "Thou shalt not commit adultery" means no more to a single student than does the Civil Rights Bill to an African native.

This article is obviously presenting a Christian view and, by suggesting that disease and pregnancy are reasons for not committing fornication, is adopting a pragmatic, not to say selfish attitude. If there is any Christian reason for not sinning, it should be for the love of God, rather than for the negative reasons of disease and pregnancy. This reasoning is again displayed in the statement "You play with fire and you get burned." Again, the author is advising us to abstain for pragmatic and selfish reasons rather than because of a deeper love for God.

The author concludes that sex is okay until it is misused. This leaves us with a wide range of interpretation for the word "misused."

Therefore, while I agree with the author's conclusion, I cannot accept her reasons or reasoning. If she pretends to present a Christian case for pre-marital abstinence, then let it be Christian, not a hodge-podge of pious sentimentality, fear, and selfishness. Amen!

SS candidates review platforms

The presidential and vice presidential candidates for the SS gave their views on the positions they hope to fill. They will also speak February 15 at 7:30 p.m. in Somsen auditorium.

CHARLES BECKER

"I am running for the office of Student Senate president because I feel that it is important that the next president of our SS be a full time student on campus who is aware of the problems which the senate must meet within the coming year, and who can devote the necessary time and effort to the tasks to be done. Our present president, Bob Keller, has said that this next year will be a momentous one for our student senate, and we will either see strides forward along the lines where progress has been made this past year or else it will be a year in which ground will be lost.

I am ready to give the time and effort necessary to meet these demands of the office. I think the growth of the campus calls for an increased effort and interest on the part of the student body.

The new union will demand a greater amount of work for the senate."

DOUG FURST

"I feel that I can benefit the student body and school through my experience and ability as a leader by offering my name as Student Senate president.

I'm for promoting "the individual dignity of the student" through the strengthening and advancement of education, student fellowship, and service for the student.

I am for more information to the student body on school expansion and growth, working with other state college SS in the exchange of ideas, scheduling more open debates and more formal debates, starting a debate club, and bringing more cultural attractions such as pianists, and lecturers to the college.

I am also for expansion of the intramural program, expansion of the SAC program, more big name entertainment, organization and competition between and within colleges in table games such as chess, bridge, and ping pong.

Also, continuance of a strong college pep band, solution of the parking problem now and in the future, raising the student work wage, and a continuance of Thursday night as religious club night.

I'm not offering a lot of empty promises. I simply say that I will work toward the achievement of these goals with my whole being.

When elected I will promote the afore mentioned points as the student body so desires. As president I will strive to coordinate and lead the SS to the best of my ability."

MIKE LYONS

"I am running for the office of the president of Student Senate because I feel that I have the interest and capabilities as the students' representative for directing an efficient and effective Senate.

"Progress forward" best describes my feelings concerning Winona State College. Our school is definitely growing scholastically, physically and socially. We, the students, should be represented in all phases of this development. This representation can become a reality through continued and further cooperation between students and faculty. I believe that this can be accomplished by effective use of our present representation on the student personnel and guidance committee.

A student union board is presently being set up within our college for the purpose of directing our soon-to-be-completed student union. I believe that we, the students, should be represented equally along with the faculty on this board. Our funds are supporting the union; therefore, we should be represented in its governing.

If elected as your president, I will try to represent, through my previous experience of working closely with the Senate and with your support, the entire student body in all phases of college activity.

Finally, whether you are going to vote for me or for one of my opponents, please remember to vote on election day. This is the only way that we can secure the best representation for our school.

TOM SMITH

"My objective in running for Student Senate president is first of all to become more active in student affairs and secondly to see and encourage the students of WSC to become more interested in their student government. I believe the students of WSC to become more interested in their student government. I believe the students should come to know more about their government and how and why it functions. I would also like to see the Student Senate have a better image on this campus. I would strive during the following year to see the Student Senate become an institution that students will not talk about but rather talk to."

CHERYL FICK

"I am running for Student Senate vice president because I would like to take an active part in student affairs and in doing so, become more of a part of WSC and its activities. I would hope to do my best in seeing that things were run as smoothly as possible and in making any needed improvements in the organization of our student body.

Homecoming is the responsibility of the vice president, and because I worked on the parade committee this year, I feel that I can anticipate much of the red tape involved in planning such a big event. I would be ready and willing to devote as much time and effort as necessary to make next year's homecoming the biggest and the best ever."

FRANK HAYES

"The main duties of the Student Senate vice president are the organization of homecoming events and student elections. I am running for this office because I feel that through my position as business manager of the Winonan I have gained invaluable experience in the fields of finance and public relations which are so pertinent to a position of such high importance. Through my previous experience on homecoming committees I have received the insight which is needed to run such activities effectively and efficiently. By my various affiliations with campus organizations, I have learned how to work co-operatively with students and administration alike.

As vice president I hope to bring about better student participation in both school and class elections. I will strive to make this homecoming the best ever. I intend to add a torch light parade to the list of homecoming events. And I will make myself a complete representative of the student body."

BILL RISTOW

I am running for vice president so as to represent the groups I am in and also because I feel that more of the student body needs representatives rather than just a few. The students need a voice in how they want their college run and what they want from their college. I feel I am able to give them more representation therefore giving them their due voice. I feel that as students we need more freedom to run the college as we see fit; this can only be accomplished by more representation and also by taking a strong stand on what we think right.

I feel I am qualified because I have taken a part in college activities and in the groups I am in.

"WE WILL OVERCOME" . . . Steve Andrus, Winona, adjusts one of his works displayed at his one man art exhibit in the Winona Public Library all during the month of February.

WSC senior, Steve Andrus exhibits one man art show

Steve Andrus, senior from Winona, has a one-man art exhibit at the Winona Public Library during February. The exhibit includes landscapes, figures, and abstract paintings done in oils and opaque watercolors.

Steve seriously started painting about three years ago when he was a student at the State University of Iowa.

When asked about his paintings, Steve commented, "At S.U.I. I had a painting class in which I was surrounded by painters of very fine ability. Through this, I got the motivation and inspiration to start painting with more feelings through my paintings.

"Many people want paintings for their houses, but all they see or look for in the painting is how it will go with the room and their particular color scheme. This should not be the way to select a painting. A painting should, in some way, mean something to the person who buys it. It should convey feeling or emotion to the viewer. The viewer should not try to see only what the artist has tried to convey, he should see what he himself, can get out of the painting."

Steve, who is majoring in art and minoring in music, has been active in Dolphin Club, swing band and city band. He has done art projects around campus, such as the division pages for the 1965 WENONAH. While at the U. of Iowa, he was a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, and the marching and symphony bands.

Steve's hobbies include water skiing, teaching swimming, winter sports, and folk music. Last year he was a member of "The Villagers" a folk singing group which appeared on campus.

The WINONA DAILY NEWS plans to run a large story on Steve in their magazine picture section in the near future.

Red Cross drive termed success

The Red Cross expresses thanks and congratulations on an excellent blood drive by WSC. The blood drive was pushed well into the margins of success by WSC, according to Collegiate Club president Mike Kirsche, Collingswood, N.J. Collegiate Club and Circle K sponsored the drive here.

"The overall participation was good, but response from WSC was tremendous" according to Kirsche. 30 members of Sigma Tau Gamma were among the groups contributing to the drive.

YOUNG DOCTOR JOHN BUCHANAN, JR. . . (Alfonso Pagliarello) listens to the heart beat of Alma Winemiller (Jeanne Morrison) during Wenonah Players' presentation of "Summer and Smoke" early this past week. The play, directed by Miss Dorothy B. Magnus, was a complete sellout.

Close decisions

Wrestlers win 3 more, tie 1; Tankmen sweep 4

Marchionda injures hand

Winona State's undefeated but once tied wrestling squad saw lots of action the last two weeks. It started at Michigan Tech. with a decisive 27-5 victory over the Huskies.

The only loss was a five point forfeit at the 123-pound class. Captain Larry Marchionda fractured a hand and was unable to compete. The Warriors gained three pins from Steve Baird at 130, Tom Caron at 177 and Larry Wedemeier at heavyweight and decisions by Merle Sovereign at 147, Perry King 137, Dan Scrabeck at 167 and Leo Simon at 157.

The only blemish on the Warriors record came at the hands of Superior, the defending Wisconsin University champions. Again forfeiting the 123-pound class, the grapplers fought back to a 14-14 tie.

Traveling to Waverly, Iowa the Warriors dumped Wartburg College with a crushing 25-10 decision.

A forfeit at the 123-pound division due to lack of man-making weight to substitute for injured Marchionda cost the Warriors five points. Wartburg scored the other five points on a Jim Brandau pin against Scrabeck at 167.

Caron and Wedemeier scored pins and Baird, King, Sovereign, Simon and John Zwolinski gained decisions.

Zwolinski, a former national WMCA champ and a transfer from Canasius University, moved into the heavyweight class replacing undefeated Larry Wedemeier who moved down to the 191-pound class. Because of transferring, Zwolinski just became eligible February 1.

Moving into the friendly surroundings of Memorial Hall, head coach Bob Gunner's wrestlers remained undefeated by slipping past Bemidji State 22-16 in a Northern Intercollegiate Conference match.

In a see-saw battle the Warriors fell behind 8-0 on wins at 115 and 123 divisions. Marchionda still was out with a fractured hand.

The Statesmen fought back on wins by Baird, King, Sovereign and Simon to push the Warriors ahead 14-8.

Then is was Bemidji's turn as they got a pin from Mike Hanlon over Scrabeck at 167 and a decision by Bob Frick over Caron pulled the Beavers ahead 16-14.

The final two matches were Winona's as Wedemeier and Zwolinski gained a decision and a pin respectively, making the final score 22-16.

STRETCH . . . La Crosse State's Goers (left) stretches out to a new pool record in the 200-yard freestyle event. Swimming for the Warriors were Dick Childers (middle) and Bob Easton (right). Easton placed second and Childers finished third. Winona went on to win the dual competition 54-41.

Cagers drop 3 more

The Winona State College basketball team played the Knights of Wartburg College last Tuesday at Memorial Hall. The first half proved to be one in which Wartburg could do no wrong and the Warriors could do no right.

After a frustrating first half which saw several missed layups, steals, fouls, one offensive rebound, and easy Wartburg baskets, the Warriors trailed by 15 points.

In the second stanza the Cagers turned the tables and outplayed the Knights down 'til the last 6 seconds when the Warriors called time out trailing 81-79.

A set play was set up but the shot missed and the Warriors suffered their 11th loss of the season. In the second half the Warrior rally was spearheaded by the return to '63 form of Gar Peterson.

He finished with 10 pts.-all in the second half. Meisner led the Warriors with 18 points.

The following Friday the Warriors turned north to Moorhead and Bemidji. They left Dave Meisner and Gar Peterson home due to injury and thus were tagged heavy underdogs for both games.

Friday night at Moorhead the outmanned Warriors fell 86-52. They trailed 17-0 at the outset. The bigger Dragons easily coasted to victory after nearly losing to the Warriors earlier at Winona. They won the previous game in overtime. Jack Kelly led the Warriors with 10.

In Bemidji the same story prevailed. Undermanned and out-heighted, the Warriors suffered a 110-65 defeat.

Bright spots for the Warriors were Tim Anderson's 16 points and 15 by J. D. Barnette, a transfer from U. of Missouri. The Warriors next home game is tomorrow with St. Cloud.

King, Wedemeier undefeated

by Ed Sheffield

Winona State's fine wrestling squad has generated real enthusiasm the past weeks. Under the able and talented leadership of coach Robert Gunner, the Statesmen have compiled a 9-0-1 team mark.

Attendance at the meets has been rising with every match. If you've seen a meet you'll know why and if you haven't attended one yet, where have you been?

Perry King and Larry Wedemeier have compiled perfect season marks up to this paper deadline. Interesting to note that King never competed in high school wrestling. Good thing for Winona he didn't because he would probably be at a university on a wrestling scholarship. Lary is the younger brother of Jerry Wedemeier, the former WSC great.

Gunner with all the team's success so far this winter still has a few headaches ahead. Losing captain Larry Marchionda who fractured his hand is just one of them. Others include State College of Iowa, Moorhead, the NIC tournament and the national NAIA meet. But with all the problems ahead, this season's record is a complete turnaround from last year's record when the grapplers compiled only three dual meet victories.

After the opening loss to Macalester, John Martin's swimmers have really come to life taking six dual wins without a loss. Bemidji State looms just ahead and is reported to have an excellent squad. The tankers should have a real tough battle on their hands to keep on their winning streak.

On the basketball court, the Warriors have their problems. Wins have been tough to get for coach Robert Campbell's cagers and his problems have been getting bigger. Plagued with bad breaks all season, the Warriors lost two top performers in Dave Meisner and Gary Peterson. Meisner has blood poisoning from infected foot blisters and Peterson has a game knee. Meisner is among the scoring leaders in the NIC averaging about 18 points in conference games.

College bowl

Last week in college league action Lyle Bessie was the high man of the week by banging out a 609 series with a high game of 235. His team, the X-L's, also took high team game and series with 1,000 and 2,913 pins respectively.

Anyone interested in bowling, be at Westgate Bowl next Thursday afternoon at 3:30, as one team, Gamma Delta, has had to forfeit most of the season because of a lack of bowlers.

As of yet, the first half champ is undecided, as there is a slight mixup among the wins and losses, which should be straightened out by next issue.

| College League Standings | | |
|--------------------------|---|---|
| Phi Sig | 3 | 0 |
| X-L's | 3 | 0 |
| Holy Rollers | 2 | 1 |
| Hustlers | 2 | 1 |

Top ex coach Jim Davies' team, 60-35

After a month's lay off, Winona's swimming team has won four straight dual meets. Coach John Martin's tankmen defeated Oshkosh State 60-35, Platteville State University 53-42, La Crosse State University 54-41, and St. Thomas 50-45.

Oshkosh State won five in a row under coach Jim Davies before falling to the Warriors. Davies was swimming coach at Winona before Martin took over last season.

Buzz Braun and Dick Childers were double event winners for State. Childers won the 200 and 500-yard freestyle distance events and Braun won the 50 and 100-yard freestyle sprint events.

Traveling to Platteville, Wisconsin the Warriors improved their season record to 4-1 with a close 53-42 decision over Platteville State University.

Dennis Blanchard, tanker captain, set two pool records in the 200-yard individual medley and 200-yard backstroke events. Braun was also a twin winner, taking the 50 and 100-yard freestyle events.

Memorial Auditorium was the scene for arch-rival La Crosse State's 54-41 defeat.

La Crosse's Goers set two individual pool marks. Goers won the 200-yard freestyle event breaking Bill Kohler's 1:58.1 clocking and then took the 100-yard breaking Blanchard's record of 52.6 seconds.

Blanchard finished second in the 100-yard event at 52.3 seconds, a new Warrior varsity record.

John Martin's swimmers traveled to St. Paul and won its sixth meet in seven outings against St. Thomas 50-45.

Blanchard was a double winner once again copping the 200-yard individual medley and the 100-yard freestyle. Tom Stover won the diving event for State and Mike Anderson took the 200-yard backstroke.

Anderson, Pat Ford, Bob Sage and Bill Keenan teamed up to win the 400-yard medley for the other Warrior first place win.

The tankers travel to highly rated Bemidji State tomorrow for a dual meet.

YELLING ENCOURAGEMENT . . . but caught with his mouth open is coach John Martin. Winona widened the 11-5 led to 54-41 against La Crosse and Martin's tankers had another victory.
